Guidelines for Application for Special Studies
Please read prior to completing form

1) This course accommodates for a student's special academic interest in a topic or area of study in the field of sport management that may be met in part by doing more independent work under the direction of a professor with an interest or specialty in the same area. Course content and work assigned for evaluation are determined individually between the student and the professor.

2. All full-time faculty members are available as potential supervisors for Special Studies courses. For the list of faculty, their research/subject interests and contact information, please go to: http://www.brocku.ca/applied-health-sciences/academic-departments/sport-management/faculty-staff

3. A student who meets the admission requirements for this course (13 credits; 70% major average; SPMA major) is responsible for approaching the Professor(s) he/she is interested in working with and discussing their interests.

4. The normal registration deadlines apply for enrolling in SPMA 4P99 without financial or academic penalties. Accounting for holiday time in the summer as well as limits on how many individual students a professor can reasonably supervise in a term, students should make arrangements for a 4P99 well ahead of the term in which they wish to do the course. On a regular basis, SPMA 4P99 is offered D2 and D3 in the FW terms as well as in the Spring and Summer terms, providing ample opportunity for students to plan ahead and discuss their interests with a Professor(s).

5. Please return the form to the Department Office once you and the Professor have completed it as soon as possible after it has been completed.

6. Ultimately, it is the Professor's decision whether to supervise an individual student. Upon their agreement and the completion of this form, a second approval is required by the Departmental Chair. Students will be notified by email when final approval and override have been processed at which point you can register.
