Sending e-mails and Calendar invites to groups of people

When sending a Calendar invite or e-mail to a group, make sure that the group allows all group members to see the list of addresses in the group. This ensures that e-mail and calendar invites put the addresses in the To: field and not the Bcc: field. Calendar invites in the Bcc: field can have unexpected results.

To ensure group invites work, open your group in the Address book by double-clicking on it, and uncheck the "Don't show addresses when sending to group" found under the Group Name (See screenshot below).

You should check each of your groups and make these corrections.
