Centre for Digital Humanities
Student work copyright licence

Note to student: To showcase the work of students of the Interactive Arts and Science Program and to provide students with a platform for making their work public, the Centre for Digital Humanities will be posting student works to its websites. If you would like to make your work available for this purpose, please complete and sign this form and return it to: Interactive Media Projects Facilitator, Centre for Digital Humanities, Thistle East 269 F, Brock University. Under this form, you give Brock the right to post your work online and to share it with other students. You warrant that it is your own work and that it doesn't violate anyone else's rights, for example, by infringing their copyright or violating their privacy. If the work was a team project, you must list all other authors below and ensure you have their permission. If you have any questions about this form, please contact Julia Babos jbabos@brocku.ca.

1. Grant of licence

I grant Brock University, through the Centre for Digital Humanities ("Centre"), a non-exclusive, royalty-free, perpetual, worldwide licence to reproduce, communicate, distribute, display and perform the work described below ("My Work") in whole or in part, for promotional and educational purposes, in any and all media now or hereafter known and to sublicense any and all of these rights to third parties

2. Warranties

I represent and warrant that I have all the rights necessary to grant the rights in this licence, including any necessary permissions or releases from third parties, and that the communication of My Work will not breach any law or the right of any other person or entity. If My Work has multiple authors, I have listed all authors below and am authorized by each of the authors to sign this licence.

3. Waiver of rights

I waive any right to approve any use of My Work and any payment or additional consideration for any use of My Work.
