CHARLES KISSI - BROCK HEAD BASKETBALL COACH

Charles Kissi is in his second season as the coach of the Brock men's basketball program.

Kissi, a 32-year old native of Toronto, Ont., takes over one of only four programs in Canada that has captured two or more National Championships over the past 20 years.

In 2012-2013, Kissi served as an apprentice coach with the NBA's Toronto Raptors, being mentored by Raptors Head Coach Dwane Casey. Kissi was the subject of a six-part documentary "Raptors Coaches Open House Protégé Program" that aired on NBA TV Canada and is currently posted on the Toronto Raptors YouTube channel.

Prior to working with the Toronto Raptors, Kissi served as the Head Coach of the Ryerson Ram's women's basketball program, highlighted by a berth into the OUA East Final Four in 2010-2011. He joined Ryerson in 2009-2010 as an assistant coach, working under St. Catharines native and former National Team assistant coach, Sandy Pothier.

At the club level, Kissi was head coach of the Tri-County Thunder JUEL Team in 2012-13. From 2004-09 Kissi coached with the Scarborough Blues club program leading female squads to provincial and national tournaments.

A former player at McMaster University, he competed in two national championship tournaments with the Marauders. He was also the team's 2003 recipient of the Liam Stevens Award, which is awarded to the player who best exemplifies the qualities of positive attitude, hard work and determination.
